In today’s uncertain environment there are many challenges facing those responsible for setting and implementing business schools’ research strategy. This conference provides a safe space to discuss the challenges and explore solutions to keys issues in the sector.

Taking place alongside the conference will be the second annual Research Exhibition showcasing how business & management research is delivering a positive impact to business, society and the economy.

Find out more: charteredabs.org/arc2020

12-13 May, Belfast

The conference is of great value to all those that contribute to business and management education excellence. Delivered by, and for, members of business school faculty, LTSE 2020 will showcase a wide range of innovations in teaching practice, cutting-edge pedagogic research and inventive student engagement initiatives.

The call for workshops, research papers, roundtables, PechaKucha presentations and posters for LTSE 2020 will open in the autumn.
